Keep The Colony Beautiful presents ‘Edible Landscape’ class

THE COLONY, Texas — Why water and grow what you can't eat? Utilizing containers in your landscape to grow edibles is a way to add food to your table and colors and textures to your home's garden.

Join Keep The Colony Beautiful and Texas Master Gardener Vivian Lewis for a class titled, “The Edible Landscape,” at 7 p.m. Thursday,

April 27, at City Hall, 6800 Main St. This program will teach you how to incorporate edibles into your containers, what plants and varieties work best in our habitat, and the proper season to plant for best results. A plant list and suggested plant combinations will be provided.

The class is part of the Denton County Master Gardener Association's annual offerings. For more info, visit <http://dcmga.com/>. Please RSVP for the class by contacting Neighborhood Enhancement Officer Danny Dill at 972-624-3159, ddill@thecolonytx.gov.
